THE HOME PAPER

SAY!

(By CHARLES J. ARNOLD)

Their names are Glenn H. Lyon, Marshall (Bridge) Abrams, O. W. (Holly) Hollowell and Dr. John A. Egan, and they claim to constitute the Kiwanis (with apologies to Kiwanis) quartette. And how they can scatter harmony both hither and yon.

Lyon sings falsetto.
Hollowell sings by ear.
Abrams sings by note.
Egan sings regardless.

Every now and then I drop into the "Old Tavern," as I have nicknamed the Fleenor Drug store, and find the four harmony hoppers seated at the table over their steins of Coco Cola, harmonizing to who tied the pup.

I claim their conduct is disorderly but they contend that it is only effervescing musical ability. But why should I worry? Youth must have its fling, and as long as they sing at Fleenor's I don't have to stay there. But should they ever attempt to charm me with their sad, sweet voices, I'll resign. My personal criticism of the foursome is: "They sing, but none too well."

Who was it who said: "Snow, snow, beautiful snow."

But, honestly, I know Marshall Abrams plays by note. Don't I remember when he used to be half of the two piece orchestra at the Lyric theater. He played a fiddle to a piano accompaniment. And how he did fiddle. I still can smell the rosin.

And, when it comes to endurance, I know Glenn Lyon is there. I remember one night when I drove from French Lick to Greencastle, with him and he never missed a note during the entire trip, except when we stopped at Bedford to get some "ham and". Really I believe he is the long distance singing champion of the state.

Doc Egan and Holly being virtual new comers in this community, I am unable to give you the low down on their past musical record. But, in their defense, I will say that if they can "keep company" with Glenn and "Bridge," they must be mighty good.

And Fleenor sure is a glutton for punishment.

It is not at all because of jealousy that I am giving the public this information, for I know I can sing better than any two of them. But really whistling is my forte. I remember when I was in the "grades" I was sent home from school for whistling during school, and it takes some whistler to deserve such punishment.

Then I have been known to sing in a musical comedy. In fact, during my youth, I played the part of a coachman in a musical extravaganza, in a Christian church Sunday school production. I was dressed all up like a Santa Claus and, although I appeared only once in the four act play, I sang a four line mouthful, when I did appear. In fact, the play was so successful that we toured the county playing at each Cloverdale and Bainbridge to standing room only houses. But, really, my boots were entirely too large.

Then once I appeared in none other than Meharry Hall. In that I was a bold, brave robber man and carried a knife in my mouth. That's why I didn't sing so good in that one. The knife bothered me. In fact, some of the audience believed I was trying to put on a sword swallowing act.

All in all, however, I'm a pretty good singer. My only trouble is that when I sing in public I get nervous and in order to get best results, must have something to hold to. (Full details may be secured through request. Self-addressed and stamped envelope must accompany all inquiries.)

Snow, snow, beautiful snow
I never invited you, why don't you go
You litter my sidewalks
You keep my shoes wet
Your leaving won't cause me
One bit of regret.
I'm strong for this sunshine
The green grass and trees
This cold—I don't like it
For I wear, B. V. D's.

Floods

SANTIAGO, Chili, Nov. 27.—An earthquake, fire and floods today ravaged the north-central part of Chili, causing damage estimated at more than one million pesos (about $130,000).

The busy seaport city of Coquimbo was shaken by a short but sharp quake at 7:40 a. m., today, throwing the inhabitants into a panic. Just as the excitement had about subsided fire broke out in the business section and an entire block was leveled before it could be subdued.

The damage from quake and fire was estimated at $100,000.

Floods, resulting from the melting of heavy spring snows in the Andes, are devastating farm lands along the rivers Huasco and Copiapo. The town of Valparaiso is threatened and the railroad connecting the city of Copiapo with the seaport of Caldera has been cut. All available men are being used in an attempt to stem the waters.

JAPAN QUAKE TOLL 360 DEAD
TOKIO, Nov. 27.—The death list in Wednesday's earthquake continued mounting today. The dead now total 360, the injured 500, and it is feared both lists will be still further increased.

Ninety persons are reported to have been buried in a landslide at Shuzenji, but this report could not be confirmed. Other reports state that 330 workmen were in the Tanna tunnel when part of the walls caved in. Five bodies have so far been recovered.

Many of the towns on the Idzu peninsula where the quake was most severely felt were practically leveled to the earth. It is estimated that approximately thirty thousand are homeless.

STRETCH SO MAN CAN SMOKE

MUNCIE, Ind., Nov. 25.—Joseph Miller's sentence of six months on the state farm and $700 fine were changed today to one to ten years in the state penitentiary in order that the 71-year-old farmer might smoke. State farm rules prohibit prisoners from smoking, while tobacco is provided to inmates of the state prison.

Miller, who lives near Eaton was convicted in Circuit court of assault and battery with intent to kill Albert Smoot, a neighbor, during an argument. Judge A. L. Guthrie, who sentenced him originally to the state farm and fined him changed the sentence with the consent of the jurors.

CRANE WILL BE SPEAKER HERE SUNDAY NIGHT

DR. HENRY HITT CRANE TO TALK
AT UNIVERSITY VESPER SERVICES—PROFESSOR THOMPSON
TO PLAY ORGAN PREFLUDE

Dr. Henry Hitt Crane who delivered the DePauw university commencement address two years ago and who inaugurated the Young People's services last year as the first speaker, will return to the DePauw campus Sunday evening to speak before the university vesper service in the Methodist church.

Dr. Crane is probably as popular a speaker, lecturer and minister as has been at DePauw in the last several years. His expression, thought-provoking sentences and unusual subjects make every audience his own. Dr. Crane can be called a DePauw man since he received his Doctor of Divinity degree here in 1921.

Despite the fact that Dr. Crane will be here during the Thanksgiving recess, many students have planned to return to the campus Sunday in time to hear his address. Townspeople and faculty members are urged to hear him. This is the only open date on his full schedule when he could be in Greencastle or arrangements would have been made for him to speak when every student would have an opportunity to hear him.

There will be the usual musical prelude to the service played by Prof. VanDenman Thompson at the organ.

The Tiger cubs ran the count up to 9 to 0 before the visitors scored. Clonc, Roachdale forward scored twice from the charity stripe for his teams only marker during the first half of the game.

In the second half Bausman substituted freely in order that all his men might see action. The Greencastle boys gave a much better exhibition of basketball than they did against the Roosevelt aggregation last Saturday night.

AUTO SMASHUP DAMAGE CASE GOES TO JURY

HEARING OF CASE OF ARCHIE
KAHL OF DANVILLE AGAINST
LOUIS STEVENS IS COMPLETED
IN THE PUTNAM CIRCUIT COURT

The case of Archie Kahl, Danville attorney against Louis Stevens, Greencastle druggist, went to the jury late this afternoon, but at press time today the jury was still out. Directly following the noon recess the attorneys began making their closing statements.

Kahl asks $500 judgement against Stevens as a result of an automobile collision that occurred in Danville on November 4, 1928. The collision occurred at the corner of Mill and Kentucky streets in the Hendricks county seat. Mrs. Stevens, wife of the defendant was injured. The car was operated by Robert Stevens, son of Mr. Stevens.

The suit was originally filed in the Hendricks circuit court, but was venued to the Putnam circuit court. A number of witnesses have been called by both sides. Trial of the case started in the court here Wednesday, but a recess was granted over Thanksgiving.

C. C. Gillen, Greencastle attorney and counsel for the plaintiff alleged in his statement to the jury that the collision that damaged Kahl's car was entirely due to the careless and negligent driving of Robert Stevens. Mr. Murphy, attorney for Stevens maintained that the crash as far as young Stevens was concerned was unavoidable, and was not the fault of the young man.

A gradual rise in temperature was predicted by the United States weather bureau Friday to bring slight relief from unseasonable cold weather which averaged 30 degrees below normal Thursday, giving Indiana the coldest Thanksgiving day in the fifty years of the weather bureau's existence here.

The rise began Friday as skies began clearing early in the day. The official temperature was 2 above zero at 6 a. m., 6 degrees above at 9 a. m.

Friday night will see higher temperatures, it was predicted, the mercury low being 10 to 15 degrees. Skies will become cloudy Friday night, and will bring snow Saturday, it is predicted.

Temperatures over the Dakotas in the northwest and over Texas in the southwest were 10 to 15 degrees higher Friday and moving toward middle west, giving indication of the relief forecast by the weather bureau. Should the rise continue to move toward the middle west, Sunday should bring considerable relief from the near-zero temperatures.

Greencastle, again, ranked with the coldest parts of the state. Its minimum of 4 degrees below zero Thursday night was lower than that of Indianapolis and was near the state's low which was recorded at Fort Wayne.

The hundreds of Greencastle and Putnam county school children having another vacation from school Friday were forced to spend a large share of their time indoors because of the cold. No streets have been blocked off for coasting, but children were using north Indiana street, north Jackson street and north Madison street for that purpose Thursday and Friday.

A light snow was reported over most of the state Thursday afternoon, but left only a slight trace in Greencastle. The weather still hampered trains, interurbans and buses Friday causing serious delays in arrivals.

Few automobile crashes were reported Thursday and Friday as many of the would-be Thanksgiving visitors remained at home because of icy pavements. The gravel roads, however, were reported to be in excellent condition. Automobiles owned and driven by Mrs. Hattie Crawley and George Harris collided on the west Walnut street road due to the icy pavement. Both cars were damaged, but no one was injured.

FARM BUREAU TO SEEK NEW TAX METHODS

As a means to new tax methods that farm and other property owners may be relieved of some of the heavy burden, the Indiana Farm Bureau sponsored a movement for a favorable vote on the constitutional convention referendum at the recent election. Although the referendum was lost, the farm organization feels that the issue was brought more strongly before the people of the state and that tax revision will be a paramount issue at the 1931 session of the General Assembly, according to Lewis Taylor, director of the tax legislative division.

"The referendum on the constitutional convention brought out an unexpectedly large vote totalling 788,664 on unofficial returns from the ninety-two counties, losing by a majority of 79,500 and thus the farm bureau feels that they attained at least a moral victory," says Mr. Taylor. "Organized agriculture made a strenuous campaign throughout the state supported by women, labor and real estate organizations as well as well-known educators, bankers, lawyers and business men. However large corporations, manufacturers and financial interests opposed the referendum by advancing theories of fear and high costs to defeat it."

"This same opposition claimed that new tax methods can be adopted by the legislature without constitutional revision. In view of their claims we look forward with great interest to the coming session of the state law making body for some constructive tax legislation."

Asserting that "the battle will be renewed on the morrow" for lower tax rates on property in Indiana the farm leader states that the full power of organized agriculture will be exercised in January and February when the legislature meets in Indianapolis. No definite action regarding the nature of the proposed legislation to be attempted was revealed but it is expected by the farmers of the state that the General Assembly will take steps to enact some real tax legislation that will relieve tangible property owners of the state in the amounts of taxes that they are required to pay under the present tax system.

would be good, and Ricardo Cortez as Johnnie, the man who "done her wrong." Phillips Holmes is cast as the hero, a seagoing chap who saves Frankie from the fate she dreads.

Miss Todd received high praise from the metropolitan critics for her interpretation of the picturesque role of Nellie Bly. She is a native of Lowell, a graduate of the Lowell normal school, and later taught there in the primary grades of the public schools.

Miss Todd has the distinction of having graduated with Buddy Rogers from the Paramount Players School, scoring at once in Hollywood. Her future seems to be assured as the result of her excellent performance in "Her Man." So far as is known, Miss Todd is the first school teacher to quit the classroom for the studios, and score at her first attempt.

Mr. Mayr announced that he would go to Indianapolis Saturday to receive his commission, but the routine of the presentation was not certain, since it was understood here that Governor Harry G. Leslie would be out of the city attending the Army-Navy football game at Chicago.

HELEN TWELVETREES LEARNS ART OF HAIR DRESSING

As a Broadway ingenue a few years ago and more recently as a Pathe dialogue star, Helen Twelvetrees is known wherever pictures are shown, not only for her talent and beauty, but for the striking luxury of her hair. It was easy to keep her blossoming tresses immaculate for Broadway stage performances. But, when she went down to Havana with part of the cast of the Pathe features, "Her Man," the task became slightly more complicated. In this picture, she plays the role of a dance hall princess, under circumstances which made it difficult to maintain her toilet as she had always done before. However, she managed.

in "The Painted Desert"

Miss Twelvetrees faced her greatest test in her most recent picture, "The Painted Desert," which was made on the actual scenes described in the story. While the director, Howard Higgin, did not require for her part the sleek coiffure that was necessary in pictures of the different type—she plays the role of a daughter of the desert—it was essential for Miss Twelvetrees to keep her hair in good condition.

"The desert heat," she explained, "was almost unbearable and my hair was almost constantly filled with pulverized sand. No matter how far you ride on the Painted Desert, you will

The LION and The LAMB by E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM BY ARRANGEMENT WITH COLUMBIA PICTURES

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE: Dave, a former and adventurer, inherited a title and resolved to settle down on his ancestral estate in Lemstershire much to the dissatisfaction of Muggsy, his American associate. Before this was accomplished, Dave was mistaken for a pickpocket and plunged into the midst of a strange adventure. Knocked unconscious by his accuser, Dave was taken into custody by Inez, a beautiful adventuress and carried to the headquarters of the Lambs.

When he revived he was introduced to Tottie, leader of the gang, and forced to become a member of the most notorious underworld organizations in London. After pledging his secrecy by securing his fingerprints on a dagger that had been used to kill a traitor to the gang, Dave was taken on a raid which was to be staged in the home of Mudge Layton, whom the youth had saved from drowning. The Lambs were after "The Star of Burma" a priceless diamond owned by Mudge's father. While Dave was watching in the library of the Layton home, he was surprised by Mudge. She recognized him and assumed that he had called as he had promised.

While Dave and Mudge conversed, the burglar alarm went off. Tottie came rushing into the room and Mudge realized that Dave was a member of the gang. Unwilling to see him captured, the girl begged him to flee; but Dave refused to go until the girl had promised to meet him for tea the next day. When he finally got outside, Dave found that the gang had fled. He went his own way and set out for his ancestral home at Ruddy Grange.

NOW CONTINUE WITH THE STORY

Chapter Five
WISTER and the servants, left and Dave turned to Muggsy, saying, "You see, we can't expect that we had his gang tied up here, now you and Stanton are going to be the gang."

"I beg pardon, Sir," Wister inquired.

"I want you to howl at regular fifteen minute intervals as though you were being tortured terribly and make it very realistic and villainous."

"Shall we start now?" asked Wister.

"Yes, and every fifteen minutes until I get what I want from that lily-livered skunk."

A ghastly cry rang through the old hall of the Grange. It was closely followed by a similar one from Stanton. This was repeated at regular intervals while Dave and Muggsy put Bert through a third degree. While they were thus engaged, Mudge called. Wister kept her outside in the hall fearing to admit her without special orders from Dave. As it happened, Dave passed near the door, and seeing Mudge had her come in. Mudge could not understand what it was all about. While Dave was trying to explain Muggsy rushed into the room with the paper and exclaimed, "Dave, I've got it, he signed it and without a whimper."

"That's great, let him go now," said Dave. And then turning to Mudge he said, "Oh excuse me, Miss Layton, this is Mr. Ryan, a friend. I'm so glad that you dropped in. Do you believe now that I am the Earl of Lemstershire?" Before she could reply, more screams rang through the house. Dave excused himself long enough to silence the ladies just then Tottie arrived at the Grange and was admitted. Dave stood for his insolence a few moments and then had Wister assist him to the door. Mudge was frightened and insisted that Dave notify the police.

Against his wishes Dave agreed but when he attempted to use the phone, he discovered that the wires had been cut. Calling much help from that quarter, but we can handle this ourselves. I am going into the city for tea."

Ruchia: Come on! Come on! Be on your way!

"Yes, tea," smiled Dave dryly.

"And I am going to bring back one of the Lambs. Bert, the slick advance agent for the gang, I heard a remark last night that he had a date at the Wellington Arms for this afternoon and whether he knows it or not, he also has a date at Grange here tonight."

Dave took from his pocket, a folded paper. "Here is a confession. The true story of those two crimes of yesterday. Handsome is going to sign it, well I am going. I want you Muggsy to take a note for me to the Lamb's headquarters. I've written the location of the place on the envelope."

"Will there be an answer," Muggsy inquired.

"There may be, but I wouldn't wait for it."

Dave met Mudge for tea at the Wellington Arms, as he had promised. She was enough of a thoroughbred to keep the engagement. Over tea and muffins, Dave explained the situation and almost convinced the girl that he was the innocent victim of circumstance. The unwitting Bert walked right into Dave's trap at the Wellington and accompanied him to Ruddy Grange, supposing that a meeting of the Lambs was to take place there.

In the meantime, Muggsy had delivered the message to the Lamb's headquarters and was awaiting Dave's return. Dave had some difficulty in getting in. But finally succeeded.

While he was away, the various instruments of torture had arrived. Bert was startled to hear Wister call Dave, "My Lord," but the latter hurried the agent of the Lambs away before he could ask further questions. "Come right with me," said Dave, and then turning to Muggsy he added, "Our last guest has arrived. Are Tottie and the others here?"

"What?" asked Muggsy in surprise. "They are upstairs, aren't they?" Dave broke in.

And Muggsy caught herself, "Oh sure they are upstairs."

Muggsy frisked Bert of his pistol much to the gangster's dissatisfaction and then led the man away. Dave called Wister to him and said, "You heard us telling that rat Muggsy to him. Dave rushed out to look around the grounds, warning Wister and Stanton to watch the doors and shoot anyone that tried to get in. While they were watching the door, Tottie smashed a window and Wister fired shots at him. Tottie was unharmed, "Well my children," he said, "Wasn't it nice for the boys to step out for a moment. You too were so easy, you destroyed all the fun. Then at turning to his men he exclaimed, "Now get that girl tied up and take her away. You Larks, get behind the door, so that you can give our friends a nice reception when they return. Lem, take the shivering laddies upstairs and tie them to something and be quiet for I hear the others coming back. Dave rushed in calling to Mudge, for he feared that Tottie was already in the room. The leader of the Lambs walked out upon Dave nonchalantly.

"See here Tottie," said Dave, "You've got me, what do you want with Miss Layton? Where is she?"

"You seem to have forgotten our business, little lambkin," Tottie commenced, "I still want the Star of Burma."

"I am sure Miss Layton's father would be only too glad to part with it in order to insure his daughter's safety."

"He's in Paris, isn't he?"

"I must telephone him."

"An infernal scoundrel," Dave exclaimed.

"Tut — tut — ut — ut — tut —" said Tottie.

Then turning to his henchmen ordered, "Lem, take them upstairs, you may tie them up near Miss Layton" and then with a sneer added, "but please see that they are properly chaperoned."

The men after a struggle led Dave and Muggsy away, much to the satisfaction of Inez who had already entered the room. So Inez said Tottie you see they are all the same, because you wanted him. I took the young hell-cat into our organization, you can see for yourself, the utter lack of gratitude."

The Lambs took Dave and Muggsy upstairs to the lower room. There they found Mudge already securely bound to one of the columns which bordered the room. Dave took a last cigarette before he was bound and cleverly managed to conceal his lighter in his closed fist.

"You heard us telling that rat

SCIENTIST REPORTS NEW METHOD OF REFRIGERATION

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 25.—Finding which provides needed nutritional and other scientific data are announced by Dr. J. Cecil Rhodes, Director of the Medical Arts Laboratories, Philadelphia, following completion of the first phase of an investigation he is conducting to determine the exact effects of the new quick-freezing process upon fresh fruit frozen during their season for year-round consumption.

Fresh peaches frozen in Georgia last summer were employed in laboratory tests designed to show what effect if any the freezing had upon their flavor, food value, mineral salts content, enzymes and other chemical constituents. The fruit was subjected to a series of chemical analyses and to "taste" tests by groups of people of varying ages and walks in life. Bacterial cultures were made for evidence of the general effectiveness of the quick-freezing process in the preservation of fresh fruits.

"The tests show," Dr. Rhodes states, "that all of the original nutritive values and mineral salt are present. The very delicate oxidizing enzymes have been preserved. There is no evidence to indicate that any of the other chemical constituents or any of the flavor has been lost. Study of the bacterial cultures has demonstrated the general effectiveness of quick-freezing in preserving perishable fruits in a fresh state."

In the "taste" tests, forty-two men and women tasted both the frozen fruit and fresh peaches of the same variety purchased in Philadelphia produce markets. Forty of these forty-two persons preferred frozen peaches. Reasons given for preferring the frozen fruit were that they were more juicy, sweeter and had a better flavor. The better flavor and juicier quality of the frozen fruit is explained by the fact that the peaches were frozen before they had an opportunity to lose the flavor and juiciness always lost by the unfrozen fruit in some degree during transportation to markets.

In Dr. Rhodes' opinion, rapid development of the quick-freezing process as applied to fresh fruits forecasts an improvement in the nation's diet through providing a greater abundance of fresh, health-giving foods during the winter months, and a more profitable return to the grower by opening up to him wider, year-round markets for his perishable products.

One of the latest developments in this direction is completion of arrangements for the construction of a citrus juice quick-freezing plant at Orlando, Florida by Tom Huston of Columbus, Georgia, known as the "Peanut King" because of his prominence in the line of peanut confections, and as one of the pioneers in the quick-freezing of fresh fruits. Here orange juice will be frozen, to be delivered at the door by the milkman along with the morning milk, for serving on the nation's breakfast tables.

Quick-freezing differs from ordinary cold-storage freezing in that foods are frozen in from one to two hours, instead of from twelve to forty-eight hours. The quicker the freezing the zero temperatures employed in quick freezing result in small crystals which do not destroy the walls of the smaller ice crystals formed. Subcells, whereas in slow-freezing the large ice crystals break down the cell walls and allow the escape of their contents, resulting in loss of nutritive value and flavor.

SAVOLDI GETS ONLY
MARKER IN CONTEST

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Joe Savoldi belongs in any kind of football company.

The ex-Notre Dame terror can find his way around the premises and protect himself in the clinches among the pros just as well as he did in college competition.

"Crimping Joe" wasn't exactly a "wow" in his debut as a professional with the Chicago Bears at Wrigley field today when they engaged and beat their old civic enemy, the Cardinals, 6 to 0, but he did well enough, all things considered.

He scored the only touchdown in the second period on a one-yard bust through the line.

THE THEATERS

VONCASTLE

"Double Cross Roads" Brings Tense Story and an All Star Cast Generally saluted as one of the most powerfully dramatic pictures to reach the all talking screen, "Double Cross Roads," Fox Movietone romantic and emotional drama, will start its run at the Voncastle Theatre today and plays through Saturday, matinee and night.

Based on William Lipman's widely read novel, "Yonder Grow the Daisies," with screen story and dialog by Howard Estabrook, this production is declared to embrace all the essentials of entertainment, tense drama, pathos, thrills, beauty and a sprinkling of delightful comedy.

Robert Ames, well and favorably known on the New York stage, who went to Hollywood to play leading roles with Pola Negri, and who recently supported Gloria Swanson in "The Trespasser," portrays one of the principal character parts.

Lila Lee, beautiful and talented screen actress, enacts the leading feminine role.

The other featured players are Montagu Love, Ned Sparks and George MacFarlane.

GRANADA

"Buddy" Rogers Does His Stuff in Tuneful Hit

"My Future Just Passed" is the big hit song of Charles "Buddy" Rogers' latest starring picture, "Safety in Numbers," tuneful and merry musical-comedy confection, which comes to the Granada Theatre Saturday and plays through Sunday, matinee and night.

He does things in this picture which are right down his alley. Sings several songs, plays the trombone, battles his love-rival in a whirlwind fistie encounter and make love—to five different girls, three of them the most bewitching of Hollywood's younger blond contingent, Josephine Dunn, Virginia Bruce and Carol Lombard.

"Buddy" is seen as the young American boy with music in his veins and an inheritance of 350 million dollars in store for his approaching 21st birthday. But his uncle and guardian, deciding to discipline "Buddy" and to accustom him to the ways of the world, entrusts him to the custody of three flippant girls in New York. Of course "Buddy" falls in love with the girls and many complications ensue—principally of a highly hilarious nature. But the youngster proves his worth as a business man before the film ends, by writing a hit number for a musical show.

Charles (Buddy) Rogers, "America's boy friend" who appears in the leading role in "Safety in Numbers" the all-singing, and musical pep program showing this Saturday and Sunday, matinee and night at the Granada Theatre.

Hardwood
Hits

The Tiger Cubs—hit their stride Wednesday night and annexed a couple of contests. The Roachdale regulars went down by a score of 43 to 13, while the north Putnam school's "R" team "flopped" to the tune of 21 to 7.

Well, so far we've picked them right half of the time. We picked Roosevelt's Ruff Riders for losers. And we're telling you that if the Tiger Cubs had played against the up-state team as they did against Roachdale the first invasion would have been turned back.

H. Stone was high point man, but he had plenty of help from Dawson, Hurst and T. Stone, and McNally was a "big help" in spoiling the visitor's shooting.

We think the game Wednesday night is the first we ever saw on the Greencastle floor in which a team failed to score a field goal in the first half, but that is just what those Roachdale boys did. Clones did hit twice from the charity stripe.

On account of cold weather the fans were not out in large numbers, but "a good time was had by all" Greencastle fans present.

Coach W. E. Bausman is pointing his boys to turn back the Lebanon invasion, which is scheduled for Saturday night.

Swamp Lebanon!

Any way, Roachdale was not the only north Putnam quintet to "go under" Wednesday night. Danville sank Bainbridge on the Danville floor by a score of 20 to 16. The half score was 6 to 4 in favor of the Hendricks county boys. Dickson was the outstanding Bainbridge player.

The Bainbridge seconds managed to nose the Danville reserves out by a 16 to 14 score.

Two county teams will engage in contests tonight. Russellville will journey to Ladoga, and Belle Union will see action at New Winchester.

CHEMISTS REPORT ENOUGH
HELIUM FOR TRADE USES

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(INS)—Helium, now used chiefly in dirigibles, has become so plentiful that it may soon be applied to medicine, metallurgy or food preservation. The American Chemical Society announces in a report made by W. E. Snyder and R. R. Bottoms, Louisville, Ky.

Helium may now be used both to heat and cool the home because of its high conductivity. Living quarters aboard both dirigibles and airplanes may be heated by helium circulated from the exhaust.

The gas may be used in combination with oxygen as an artificial atmosphere for use in deep-sea diving and caisson work, and in the treatment of pulmonary and blood diseases.

Food sealed in helium is not touched by other gases which cause food to decompose and tests over a period of months have shown the gas is practical as a preservative. And technical uses for helium have been found in great numbers.

IT'S FEEDING THAT MAKES A FOOTBALL TEAM "FIGHT"

EDITOR'S NOTE

In his seven years at Notre Dame University, prior to 1930, Knute Rockne has turned out four national championship teams and has seen 101 victories chalked up by the eleven under his guidance. Naturally, these men have been most carefully conditioned—for no sport is more exacting in its demands upon stamina than is the particular brand of football played by Coach Rockne's "Fighting Irish". We feel that Mr. Rockne's views on correct eating may be copied profitably by all who must face the struggle of modern life—and surely no man is better able to speak authoritatively on this matter of outstanding importance.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the importance of proper diet in the moulding of a football team. A coach is faced with the task not only of bringing his men to a fine fighting edge for any particular game, but also of being able to hold them at their physical best throughout an entire season. And I find that watching carefully over what my men put into their stomachs is even more important to assure a team's continued fitness than is the usual required abstinence from smoking and other undermining habits.

Mental alertness—so necessary in the Notre Dame system, where speed and the ability to think quickly are stressed more than sheer weight—is directly dependent upon a healthy body. And a healthy physique, as we all know, is one that is kept free at all times from those accumulations of residual poisons that might have been eliminated through a carefully balanced diet.

Unfortunately, very few persons seem to "have time" to study their diet. They must be educated and guided in what to eat and what not to eat. This is particularly true of those just entering upon college life; and thus we find the conscientious coach faced with many duties other than teaching embryo stars the fundamentals of the game. Early in his experience he learns that he must emphasize the principles of hygiene and balanced diet along with his instruction in football lore—and see to it, personally, that every player has real appreciation of the needs of his body to endure the strain of competition on the gridiron.

Notre Dame football teams have been called the "eleven halfbacks", because we do not stress weight in the line so much as we insist upon speed and the ability to think quickly. This physical stamina and mental alertness are promoted through strict adherence to fundamental dietary laws—and just as much stress is placed upon this building of bodily energy as is given to playing instructions in our workouts on the field.

At Notre Dame, both the scrubs and members of the varsity football team are held to a strict diet throughout the playing season. While this is not at all an unusual practice in collegiate athletics, we do believe that our system of conditioning is largely responsible for the success of the "Fighting Irish". In those special dishes which we prepare for our training table are included generous quantities of fruits, fibrous vegetables and those cereals that give a bulky "vegetable effect". Thus the normal secretory activities of the athlete's body are promoted, and his system kept free from accumulated residues that induce both mental and physical inertia.

Such a careful and rigorous schedule of diet brings real results. And it is imperative for the success of our teams that it should, for one physically weak or mentally sluggish man in the line creates a gap that may render the rest of his team mates impotent to win. The chain and its weakest link—the team and its weakest player! The analogy is absolute.

All other things being equal, the healthy football team is the winning football team. And at Notre Dame we know it's food that puts the "fight" into a squad.
